Investment philosophy

BTIM's investment philosophy is based on active management and operates on two levels:

- All BTIM's underlying managers and products have an active management approach which seeks to deliver consistent risk-adjusted outperformance by exploiting investment opportunities that arise due to the inefficient market pricing of securities
- BTIM places significant importance on determining the optimal long term Strategic Asset Allocation (SAA) and disciplined rebalancing. Tactical Asset Allocation is used to supplement the value added from SAA.

Investment process

BTIM's investment process for the BT Wholesale Active Balanced Fund applies an active management approach across all asset classes.

The underlying investments in the BT Wholesale Active Balanced Fund are managed by BTIM together with a number of external partners. ## Market review

January and February were challenging for markets as the economic news was broadly negative. There were concerns about possible monetary policy tightening in China, sovereign debt issues and stimulus withdrawal, unemployment in the US and continuing bad news out of Greece.

This news flow unsettled equity and currency markets while bolstering bonds though equity markets recovered at the end of February and continued the positive momentum into March. The quarter ended with equity markets rising over +4% on average while bond markets remained largely unchanged.

The Australian sharemarket gained just +1.3% over the quarter. The reporting season saw positive surprises outweighing negative ones, though guidance and outlook statements were frequently guarded. Banks were one of the best performing sectors, up nearly 6%, boosted by good results, and updates which underlined that the loan loss cycle is proving milder than previously expected.

Australian economic data in the first quarter underlined the strength of the local economy. Building approvals and retail sales mostly beat expectations while the unemployment rate declined to only 5.3% – far lower than in Europe or the US. The Reserve Bank of Australia surprised many forecasters by leaving the cash rate target unchanged at its February meeting but resumed the tightening cycle in March with a 25 basis point hike to 4.0%. Meanwhile the Australian dollar gained 2.2% against the USD.

Fund performance

The portfolio outperformed the benchmark over the March quarter. Global equities outperformed over the period, driven by positive performance in the US and Continental Europe strategies while the UK and Japan strategies were flat for the quarter. The BTIM currency overlay strategy also contributed to the outperformance.

Australian equities underperformed with the main detractor being the portfolio's overweight position in QBE. The insurer lost ground following its result as its insurance margins came in below what the market was expecting. The company is also being impacted in the short term by the strong Australian dollar and the very low level of global interest rates.

The portfolio's Australian listed property trusts and international fixed interest component contributed to outperformance while our holdings in global property and alternative assets detracted from returns. For credit, an overweight to Bank sub debt and insurance drove outperformance.

We returned closer to our benchmark weightings in December, and made no material changes to the asset class positioning over the March quarter. We currently maintain a slight underweight position in domestic listed property and slight overweight in Australian fixed interest via credit securities.

Strategy and outlook

Asset allocation remains similar to the benchmark aside from a small overweight to credit securities and underweight to Australian property. In essence, investment grade credit has performed well and still looks reasonably attractive though the valuation argument is less compelling than last year. Government bond yields are likely to rise further from here, as long as the economic recovery remains intact. Inflation is not yet a concern, but needs to be monitored. Currency market volatility is generally subsiding however the Euro continues to suffer from sovereign debt issues, and Sterling faces the prospect of a hung parliament in the May elections.

The global imbalances will be rectified in time but since shares are now above fair value by some metrics, and with limited prospects in the near term for dividend growth and a need for more equity raising, we prefer owning the paper higher up the capital structure, i.e. corporate bonds.

We are neutral in equities having removed the bias to the US dollar bloc at end 2009. We are currently overweight credit and underweight sovereign bonds.

The main risk to global economic growth and the performance of risk assets is the sovereign debt problem of some European countries and the lack of real consumer spending. Until we see real measures to fix the overhang of government debt and see some sustained pick-up in consumer demand we believe that any recovery will be anaemic at best.
